

Evaluation of Ph.D. student Nina Elizabeth Noreika, MSc by her supervisor – Tomas Dostal, assoc.Prof., Ph.D.

Nina started her Ph.D. study in March 2019 and her work has been fully assigned to H2020 project SHUi. I very much appreciate her enthusiasm, which allowed her to learn a lot about SWAT model and technical hydrology, which was originally not her main scope of expertise.

She worked hard and she managed all tasks, assigned to her within the project and mostly related to rainfall-runoff and water balance modelling.

Furthermore, she participated at teaching procedures of international students. Here she also was very successful.

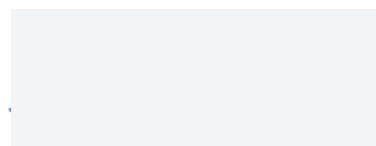

Nina was very willing to participate at any extra activities of our research team, to help with field campaigns or to discuss any research questions or problems.

Her publication activity is very good and she managed to publish 3 manuscripts as first author and number of others as member of author's team.

Her study was very much affected by COVID period, but even this trouble she managed very well and she was very effective member of research teams even during lock downs.

I truly recommend her PhD thesis to be accepted and will be happy, if she successfully defend and will be graduated by Ph.D. title.
