3. General comments

Based on agreement between Ecole Centrale de Lyon (ECL) and Faculty of Civil Engineering of CTU in Prague and with approval of the SAHC Coordinator, Evandro ARALDI conducted his research for master thesis at ECL under direct supervision of Prof. Eric VINCENS. His academic supervisor at CTU was Prof. Petr Kabele. The student's evaluation, as stated below, was formulated by Prof. VINCENS and approved by Prof. KABELE.

I supervised Evandro ARALDI during his stay at Ecole Centrale de Lyon – University of Lyon in the context of his master thesis on "Identification of the mechanical behavior of rammed earth including water content influence". Evandro always followed the instructions I gave him and worked with lot of autonomy but was able to engage me at the right moment to solve the key issues or to answer the main questions that tended to slow down his work.

He worked with a rigorous method, performed experimental tests with methodology and care which allowed valuable results to be provided.

Though very shy at the beginning of his master thesis he gained both in maturity and initiatives which demonstrate his intrinsic qualities. He was able to find information including from other colleagues or technicians from our laboratory. Finally, he demonstrated qualities for integration in my research team and always worked with a good spirit in spite of adverse events related to the devices he was supposed to use for the lab tests.

The first document version of his report he produced was of very good quality and I had only few advice to make. In general, the report was written with rigor from the very beginning which is not always the case of the students I supervised so far.
